3. Now you must store your new key file. To do this, select "Save as ...".

PLEASE NOTE

If the "Save as" option is not displayed, the new key file will be saved in the Downloads directory.

With the Internet Explorer browser, you will find this in the Windows Explorer under "Users", sub-folder "Downloads".

If this occurs, copy the key file "KeyBag.dat" into your previously chosen key place of storage (e.g. removable disk).

If you are not familiar with your Downloads directory, please contact your system administrator.

4. Store your new key file on your key file location (e.g. removable disk) again.

5. As the old key file must be overwritten, confirm the ensuing warning by clicking on "Yes".

PLEASE NOTE

If the new key file is not filed in the directory you have selected, please check the standard Downloads directory of your browser.

With the Firefox and Chrome browsers, the key file is possibly saved in the central Downloads file, depending on the settings.

If this occurs, copy the key file "KeyBag.dat" into your previously chosen key place of storage (e.g. removable disk).

If you are not familiar with your Downloads directory, please contact your system administrator.

6. After the new key file has been stored, click on "Logout". If you have any problems, you can store the key file again by clicking on "Download credentials again".
